Dear Mayor Bloomberg,

I am New York City resident concerned with responsible waste management in NYC. I encourage you to consider why, since 2008, fall leaf pick-up for NYC residents has been discontinued. As a result, thousands of tons of organic matter are now being sent to out-of-state landfills rather than harnessing this local resource to create compost. Compost is essential for the health and growth of our community gardens, street trees and parks. Why plant a Million Trees and then trash their leaves, when we can use them to make our environment healthier for all New Yorkers? Don't leave this issue on the curb:
